ABOUT ME

From Python to C to Javascript, I have been tinkering with programming for half a decade now. But my initial attempts at web development were as appealing as any '90s website.

So, I started diving deeper into UI design as well. As a result, my websites started looking modern, and my confidence as a web developer started building.

Simultaneously, I also began paying attention to SEO best practices for web development. That was a great decision since it landed me a WFH gig that allowed me to build my web development skills without putting my life on hold.
